

Have you been doubting yourselves or concerned about the way you have been raising or dealing with your children?
Are you ready to experience a new peace, freedom and ease in your in your roles as parents?

Relationship By Design

presents

Parents: Outside the Trap

A workshop for parents that transforms parent-child relationships

Coming to the Washington, D.C. area
Bethesda, MD

August 4, 2017 9:00am – 6:00pm

$395/twosome; $265/single

(No charge if registered for Reinventing the Heart and Soul of Family)

Find out why...

- parents are very often overwhelmed, frustrated and upset in their attempts to get their parenting job done,
- the tips and instructions prevalent in the media today so often do not – and cannot – work in the long run.

Here's what you should know:

Of course you love your children! However, you are unknowingly locked into old misunderstandings of what it is to be parents, of what the job of parents is, and of parent-child relationships. It is these misunderstandings that produce the experience of being bound, harried and tense as parents. And with these misunderstandings in place, the more you work at getting your job done, the more doubts and concerns grow and fester.

In the workshop you will gain...

a new insight into the nature and design of the default roles and responsibilities of parents, and a way of "seeing" parents and children that is both freeing and satisfying.

"The straight talk in the workshop opened our eyes – and did produce the freedom and ease we were here to get" - Kelly and Debbie Blocker

Join us in an extraordinary exploration of parenthood – an exploration in which you regain the experience of the joy and wonder of being parents.

To get more information or to register for the workshop, call Carol at 301/775-3374